Dashboard revamp

After purchasing an HP plan, seekers were handed off to WhatsApp for their property search, making the experience feel fragmented and disconnected from the value they had paid for.

| A premium plan, but not a premium experience

Premium dashboard before:

The premium experience broke after purchase

The WhatsApp based journey lacked the structure and visibility expected from a premium property search service.

- No visibility into shared, shortlisted, or rejected properties
- No structured place to view and manage recommendations
- Escalations when seekers felt they weren't receiving enough suggestions

AFTER

REDESIGN

A premium experience, built around the seeker

- Centralised journey: Everything from recommendations to RM support in one place
- Visible progress: Clear separation of interested and contacted properties
- Curated recommendations: RM and AI picks make the search feel personalised
- Greater control: Seekers can manage their search without relying entirely on the RM

Made the light to dark transition seamless too!

The transition was designed to feel natural and intentional, creating a clear shift from the regular Housing.com experience into a more elevated premium journey.
